The Oxford American Literary Project is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization dedicated to promoting literacy and exploring Southern arts and culture through literary endeavor.

It also publishes The Oxford American magazine, which has won National Magazine Awards and other high honors since it began publication in 1992. Billed as "The Southern Magazine of Good Writing," and "The New Yorker of the South," its pages have featured original work by William Faulkner, Walker Percy, John Grisham, John Updike, Roy Blount, Susan Sontag, Steve Martin, Charles Portis, and many other distinguished authors, while also discovering and launching the most promising writers in the region. The New York Times recently stated that The Oxford American "may be the liveliest literary magazine in America."

As one of the best and most prominent cultural exports of Arkansas, The Oxford American enhances the image and reputation of our state. We would be grateful for your support of this beloved and important civic and cultural resource.
